28 June - 2 July 2004

Open 9 am to 5pm;

Launch night 6pm - 8.30 pm, Tuesday 29 June.

A national touring photography exhibition capturing the lives of Fairtrade farmers from Asia, Latin America and Africa. Celebrating 10 years of the FAIRTRADE Mark: a journey from just three products in 1994 to over 200 in 2004, with ever-increasing consumer demand.

These beautiful and unusual photographs celebrate the simple, human concept of Fairtrade - as photographer Zed Nelson says, "these are ordinary people getting on with their lives".

Tuesday 29th June - Doors open 6pm

Talks begin at 7pm, all welcome

An opportunity to hear more about a ground-breaking research project into Ethical Consumerism which has spoken to Bristol people as its main research base, and about the initiative to make Bristol a 'Fairtrade City'. Plus free Fairtrade wine and food!

Visit the Video Diary Room - tell us what you think of the exhibition, if you buy fair trade or other 'ethical' products, and what you think Bristol should be doing to support Fairtrade!

This exhibition has been brought to you by the 'Governing the Subjects and Spaces of Ethical Consumption' project at Bristol University and the Open University, the CREATE Centre and members of the Fairtrade City steering group, working to make Bristol a Fairtrade City by 2005.
